Chair Cline, Members of the State Board of Education, and Bureau of Credentialing:

No Left Turn in Education (NLTE) is a national education advocacy organization. I am the director of the New Hampshire Chapter. I am writing you today to present the Board and the Bureau with evidence of probable widespread violation of New Hampshire's Educator Codes of Conduct.

As you know, on June 25, New Hampshire enacted a Prohibition on Teaching Discrimination. This law prohibits teaching that any person or group of people is inherently racist, sexist, or oppressive, or that any person or group of people should be discriminated against on the basis of their race or sex.

New Hampshire's Department of Education, Department of Justice, and Commission for Human Rights have issued a joint memorandum summarizing this law in the following words: "In short, do not teach that a person or a group is inherently oppressive, superior, inferior, racist, or sexist. Teach and treat all equally and without discrimination."¹

As acknowledged in the joint memorandum, New Hampshire law also makes any violation of the Prohibition on Teaching Discrimination a breach of the Educators Code of Conduct. The statute says that “[v]iolation of this section by an educator shall be considered a violation of the educator code of conduct that justifies disciplinary sanction by the state board of education.”

On August 11, in explicit response to the Prohibition on Teaching Discrimination—along with eleven analogous bills introduced in other states—the political organization Zinn Education Project, named for Marxist historian Howard Zinn,² called upon educators around the country to sign a pledge (the “Zinn Pledge”) promising to openly violate any such prohibitions that might become law. The organization claims to base this pledge upon the principle that “one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws.”³

The Zinn Pledge and its signatories are publicly available online. In confirming these names two categories of signatories have emerged. Of the sixty-two individuals who asserted they were New Hampshire educators, 35 were confirmed as such by the NH Department of Education. The NH DOE could not confirm or deny the legitimacy of the remaining 27 signatories as individuals employed in the New Hampshire school system. Both lists are attached.

The goal of these signatories to the Zinn pledge to teach racism and sexism is not an overstatement. In its own words, the Zinn Pledge says that it opposes banning education which “identifies people or groups of people... as inherently, immutably, or systemically sexist, racist, anti-LGBT, bigoted, biased [or] privileged.” All of the signatories of the Zinn Pledge, whether currently identified as N. H. educators or allied professions within the NH school system, can be assumed to have read the public document to which they signed their names.

While some educators signed the Zinn Pledge before New Hampshire’s law was passed, they did so, anticipating passage of New Hampshire’s law and promising to break it after enactment. The Zinn Pledge is evidence that all the educators who signed it, whether before or after the law was passed, are actively using their positions to instill racism, sexism, and other forms of invidious prejudice in their students.

It is also more than enough evidence for this Board to act, and for the Bureau to open investigations into all NH Zinn Pledge signatories. The Educator Code itself states that “the department [of education] shall undertake an investigation” of an educator if the department merely “has reason to suspect” that any educator knowingly failed to report a violation of the Codes.⁴

Organized educator defiance of this magnitude endangers both our children and those educators who oppose invidious discrimination. Accordingly, we urge the Board and Bureau to protect New Hampshire’s children by investigating each of the Zinn Pledge signatories for potential violations of their ethical obligations and the law.⁵

⁵ In our view it is non sensical on its face to assume that lessons and/or curriculum grounded in cult like intellectually illiterate beliefs, such as all white citizens are racist since infancy, that only whites can be racist, the United States

The names and school districts of each New Hampshire Zinn Pledge signatory—all derived from the Zinn Pledge itself and other publicly available information—are provided below. We encourage the Bureau to verify these names directly by viewing the Zinn Pledge online at <https://www.zinnedproject.org/news/pledge-to-teach-truth>.

Sincerely,

Michael D. Breen Ph.D. Director, N.L.T.E. New Hampshire Chapter was purposed to promote slavery, is now purposed to suppress minorities, and that due to this "systemic racism," and "white privilege" the morally inferior white race including school children need to be discriminated against, as non-discriminatory.
